

Bryan Bowser is Associate Professor and Program Director for Arts Management and Entrepreneurship at Baldwin Wallace University where he also serves as Department Chair of the Conservatory's Interdisciplinary Studies department including the Arts Management & Entrepreneurship, Music Industry, and Music Theatre programs.

Previously he served as Associate Director, External Affairs, for the Baldwin Wallace Conservatory of Music where he managed the Community Arts, Summer Music, and Opera Programs in addition to consulting on matters of Conservatory fund raising, marketing, student recruitment and alumni relations. He has a strong record of leadership in the Cleveland arts and non-profit community and is a passionate advocate for arts education and inclusion.

Following three seasons as Director of Operations and Development at Lyric Opera Cleveland, Bowser returned to Baldwin Wallace University as Director of the Conservatory Outreach Department; he was appointed Associate Director of the Conservatory in 2004.

He holds an MBA in Entrepreneurship and BME from Baldwin Wallace. Bowser previously served as board president of the LGBT Community Center of Greater Cleveland, Chair of the National Guild for Community Arts Education's Central Great Lakes Region, and board member of Brecksville Theater on the Square. He has presented at numerous professional meetings including: Association of Arts Administration Educators, College Music Society, Deshpande Symposium on Innovation and Entrepreneurship in Higher Education, Foundation Center, National Association of Schools of Music, and National Guild for Community Arts Education.

